WOMEN'S WOES.

Barre Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties, the wife of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. M. M. Nelson of 18 West street, Barre, Vt., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at E. A. Drown's drug store, eight years ago, benefited me so greatly that I gave for publication a statement telling of my satisfactory experience with them. At that time a severe attack of the grip had left my kidneys in a weakened condition, and instead of getting better I grew worse. The slightest housework tired me and if on my feet much sharp pains caught me across my back and compelled me to stop and rest. Other complications came on and trouble with the kidney secretions set in. I paid out over a hundred dollars for doctor's bills and medicines, but got no relief. I was finally advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and did so. I received relief from the first few doses and as I continued using the remedy the attack from which I was suffering was completely relieved. Since then I have never been without Doan's Kidney Pills in the house and have often used them, and always with the same beneficial results. I am always glad to recommend this reliable medicine to my friends and acquaintances."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

EAST MONTPELIER.

Clark Sibley was in Barre Monday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Robbins were in Calais Wednesday visiting relatives.

Mrs. Rhoda Lawson of Montpelier is visiting at the home of J. F. Robbins.

Frank Doying moved last week from the village to the west part of the town. Rev. Mr. Wellman of Montpelier preached at the brick church last Sunday.

Arthur Bartlett of Plainfield is the new station agent and is boarding at Mrs. Woods.

Henry Kelton is repairing his home and is doing his own carpentering and mason work.

Arthur Clark shot a 200 pound buck last Friday morning in Calais near the Woodbury line.

Clarence Long was quite ill the first of the week threatened with pneumonia, but is now better.

Mrs. Hattie Willard of Burlington has been spending the past two weeks at the home of her brother, C. M. Hamblin.

Mrs. Lizzie Woods has been building a new house and repairing her buildings Mr. Frederickson of Plainfield doing the work.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parker of Ludlow, former residents here, arrived in town Wednesday evening for a visit with relatives.

The hay scales at the East village which have been out of commission a long time, were repaired last week and are now in use.

Lewis Mayo had one foot quite badly injured the first of the week while working on the railroad track by getting his foot caught between a stone and an iron bar.

G. H. Clark shot a dog early Monday morning that had been hanging around several days and was chasing sheep when shot. The dog belonged to an Italian in Barre.

The concert and chicken pie supper given by the Ladies' Aid at the hall last Friday evening was a success in every way, and much enjoyed by all present.

Made Happy for Life.

Great happiness came into the home of S. C. Blair, school superintendent at St. Albans, Vt., when his little daughter was restored from the dreadful complaint he names. He says: "My little daughter had St. Vitus' dance, which yielded to no treatment, but grew steadily worse, until as a last resort we tried Electric Bitters, and I rejoice to say that three bottles effected a complete cure." Quick, sure cure for nervous complaints, general debility, female weakness, impoverished blood and malaria. Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy. Price 50c.

The Wisdom of Dorothy.

Dorothy does not believe in being left alone to go to sleep. One night after she was tucked in bed by her mother, who then left her, she called to her father and asked if he wasn't coming to bed after he finished his dinner.

"Yes, I'll go to bed as soon as my dinner digests."

"Then come upstairs now. Your dinner will digest upstairs just as well as down," argued the young hopeful—Judge.

Time Well Spent.

A few days spent now in general cleaning up and clearing up around the farm would be time well spent. There are machines and tools upon many places which stand out of doors and should be under cover for the six months or more that they will not be needed again. If they are cleaned up and put in good condition now and then put under cover it will be time and money saved when it becomes necessary to use them again. There are around some barns and sheds barrels, boxes, broken lumber and old rubbish that are only fit for the wood pile. One man who hired such a job done said the wood was worth more than the labor cost, and the improvement in the looks of the place was worth more than the wood.—American Cultivator.

Feeding Roots to Hogs.

Some care must be used in feeding roots to hogs, as they are laxative in effect and if fed in excessive amounts may bring about serious action of the bowels. Some eastern farmers recommend the use of slugs. If neither is available, clover or alfalfa hay, sheep oats or corn fodder may supply the bulky requirement of the ration with good results. Charcoal, ashes and salt should be accessible at all times. These act as a vermifuge and preventive of disease and meet the hog's craving for mineral matter in the feed.

VIRGINIA'S OFFERING TO NEW ENGLAND

Plant iron made from spinach and other greens—grown in the red soil—"mid the green fields of Virginia"—is only one of many vegetable ingredients that go to make perfect the greatest of all known remedies for constipation. This is the discovery of a great Virginian physician and named in his honor "Virginia Velvet." One at night, O. K. next morning. They never gripe or weaken, but stimulate, strengthen and sustain. Different from all other remedies, they both cleanse and strengthen the system. Not a "cure-all," but a cure for all forms of constipation and liver troubles—cleansing the system, feeding the nerves, building up the body. An ideal tonic, a laxative that never fails.

Don't get into the habit of taking drugs which at best give only temporary relief. Take "Virginia Velvet." Unlike all other pills and potions for constipation, the oftener you take "Virginia Velvet" the less you have to use. It is not necessary to go on using them forever, and in increasing doses.

Ask your druggist first. If he won't accommodate you, we will. Full sized package, in handsome watch shape bottle, sent to any address postpaid on receipt of price, 25 cents.

FEEDING FOWLS.

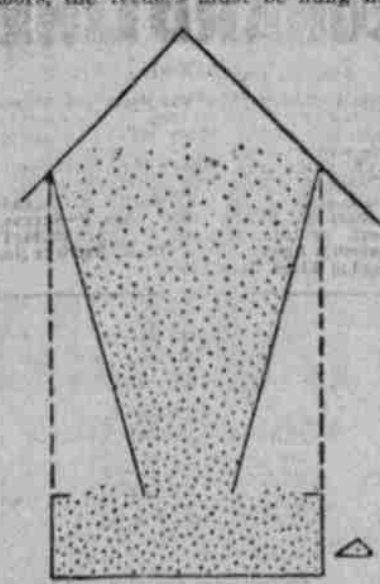

An Economical and Convenient Homemade Hopper.

A practical feeder for using the dry mash method for poultry is described in National Stockman and Farmer as follows:

Getting a nonclogging feeder that will allow the hens to get at the mash readily without permitting them to waste it has been a difficult matter, but, I think, practically solved in the hopper shown in the accompanying sketch.

Feeding from both sides, the mash can be cleaned up readily and the clogging is reduced to the minimum. It made approximately a foot square and two feet high (the smaller packing boxes at the shoe stores are about right) these hoppers will hold enough for twenty hens for ten days or two weeks. Larger sizes can be made if desired. All inside surfaces should be planned, with no cleats or projections on which the mash can lodge. At least once a month the feeder should be cleaned out. When used indoors, the feeders must be hung high enough to prevent litter being scratched up and, if necessary, a platform provided for the hens to stand on. Troughs seen objectionable on account of taking up too much space and catching more dust and litter. Properly arranged, they do well for outdoor feeders.

Dry Corn Fodder in Silo.

Corn fodder cut dry and put into a silo will not, as a rule, come out in good condition unless wet as it is put in. The reason for its failure to keep is that owing to its dryness it does not pack well. So much air is carried into the silo with the fodder that fermentation is excessive.

It is impossible to be perfectly definite answer to the question, "How much water will be required?" for, as is generally known, the degree of dryness of so called corn fodder may vary very widely. My judgment is that the fodder is most certain to come out in palatable condition and to keep with a minimum of waste if it be freely and evenly sprinkled throughout with about as much water as the material will take up without allowing drainage from the bottom, is the opinion of Professor Brooks as given in New England Homestead.

Coach.

Coach is a word derived from the Italian, meaning a shell.

Tears and the Eyes.

It is probably not a very well known fact that the shedding of tears keeps the eyes cool. Such is the case, however, and no matter how hot the head may be so long as there are tears the eyes will keep cool.

WON AT BRIDGE WHIST

(Original.)

The steamer had but a couple of days more before reaching port when the sun, which we had not seen since our departure, broke through the clouds and bathed us all in a delicious warmth. Something else burst forth at the same time—the sunshine, for me, of a face. She came on deck for the first time, and her dignified father put her in a steamer chair, arranged her wraps and sat down beside her like a shepherd dog beside a lamb. Perhaps he saw me looking at her. At any rate, that's what I was doing, for I couldn't keep my eyes off her. Such refined dignity, such repose, such gentleness! It must have all come down from generations of gentility.

Why had the weather kept her below till the voyage was nearly finished? I must make the most of the brief period left to secure an acquaintance. Alas, the sun went down in clouds, and so did my hopes! She did not appear on deck again. I did not even see her leave the ship.

Winter came and the usual round of gayeties. An invitation—bridge whist at Mrs. Peabody's—came, among others, for me, and I resolved to accept.

On entering the card room the first face I set eyes on was the steamer girl. I was surprised and, though delighted at my luck in meeting her again, pained to see her in the company. Mrs. Peabody is ultra fashionable, and the people she entertains are very "smart"—that is, the women drink cocktails, smoke cigarettes and gamble. If you ask why I go with such people, I reply I am a man and can go anywhere without soiling the feathers of my angelic masculine wings, but had I a wife she should not go to Mrs. Peabody's.

I at once sought an introduction to the steamer girl, Miss Delaplaine, and soon saw that she was out of her element. When a cocktail was handed her she started and declined it as she did so with an expression which, being interpreted, meant, "You don't get invited here again." Several young bloods had been chatting with Miss Delaplaine when I was introduced to her, and they must have been putting on their up to date society manners, for she looked ruffled, and when I addressed her deferentially she figuratively nestled to me as one would cling to a lifeboat.

Miss Delaplaine and I were at first partners. I saw at once that she knew very little about the game, and I soon suspected she didn't know she was playing for money. When we changed partners her new vis-a-vis soon made her aware of her timidity in playing a game she did not understand. At every misplay he would scowl at her and did not scruple to indicate that he was worth.

After the evening's amusement I was about to take my departure when I met Miss Delaplaine wearing a countenance that told of trouble.

"What shall I do?" she said. "I have been told that my loss at bridge whist is $105. I had no idea I was playing for money."

"And my gain is exactly the same amount. Though I knew that we were playing for stakes, I do not feel at liberty to accept my winnings."

"Why so?"

"You for one did not know that you were risking anything. The money you lost may have gone to me. You are in an unpleasant position. So am I. There is a way out for both. Let me turn in my winnings to cover your loss."

There was no trouble in persuading her to accept the terms, at least temporarily, for she had no money with her, and she told me she would need to break the matter to her father, who would be greatly shocked at hearing that she had been gambling. I bade her good night after asking permission to call and, going to the hostess, paid her loss.

Two days later upon opening my morning mail I found a note from Mrs. Peabody inclosing a note and a check for $105 from Mr. Delaplaine in payment of his daughter's loss at bridge whist. Mrs. Peabody called my attention to the fact that the amount was $3 more than the loss. I supposed this to be an error until, referring to Mr. Delaplaine's note, I saw in a postscript on the second page, "The $3 is to cover the supper."

What should I do with this amount? It did not belong to me and was intended as a snub for Mrs. Peabody. Should I return it to her, calling her attention to the snub? Such a crime would preclude the possibility of my attending any more entertainments at her house. I thought the matter over and concluded to accept the consequences. I inclosed a check for the surplus amount with Mr. Delaplaine's note, underscoring the postscript with a blue pencil.

A week later I met Mrs. Peabody face to face on the steps of St. James' church. She gave me the dead cut.

My decision was more than one relating to Mrs. Peabody. It included the smart set of which Mrs. Peabody was a distinguished member. Something in the old fashioned demeanor of Miss Delaplaine told me that if I adhered to the smart set I wouldn't be a fitting companion for her, and I knew that after her first experience she would not get lost among them again. My withdrawal proved to be no loss to me, for in time I became engaged to Miss Delaplaine. I was glad to be privileged to return in gifts the amount of my gain at the bridge whist, which I always claimed I had won from her. Besides the money, I won a wife.

Approval of Chess.

It is a singular fact that, while all other games of chance or skill have at one time or another been denounced by the clergy of every faith, chess alone has received their approbation, and among the best players of every land have been clergymen.
